ylene polymerization has produced high purity linear alpha-olefins. in the course of this investigation, combinations of critical catalyst and reaction variables which led to this result were discovered. the most important variables include catalyst composition, ethylene concentration, reaction temperature, and catalyst solvation. synthesis of branched polyethylene using (r-diimine)nickel ... - a critical feature of these catalysts is that, unlike most late metal systems, the rate of chain transfer (k ct) is much slower than the rate of propagation (k p), and thus a high polymer results from polymerization of ethylene and r-olefins. the key feature leading to slow chain transfer is the presence of bulky ortho aryl asymmetric catalysis of salen ligands in mechanism and ... -
